Jeremy,

Your press release has come to our attention. As you are aware, your statement is categorically and demonstrably false.

Your press release falsely claims Ms. Cooper "prevailed" and is "not liable for Defamation" when in fact the jury found her liable on all counts, including defamation. This is a material misrepresentation of the jury's verdict and the court proceedings.

As you know, the court has not entered any kind of judgment. The jury found your client liable on every single count. Even if the court entered judgment today, it would not say "not liable" on Count I.

You and your client are posting defamatory content and we demand a formal retraction given your statement has already been spread across social media.

Confirm you will retract immediately. If you do not retract immediately, we plan to bring this to the court's attention and reserve all rights against you, your firm, and your client.

After we released our official statement yesterday, @quinnemanuel (Megan's attorneys) emailed Jeremy in an attempt to intimidate and threaten the Defense team to retract its statement. @quinnemanuel continued by releasing its own statement falsely accusing the Defense of making false and defamatory statements. Some, but not all, of the "Independent Journalists" who were present during the trial aligned themselves with Megan's attorneys and promoted the false narrative that the Defense team was somehow lying about the results of the trial.

Megan herself took to Twitter and accused the Defense team of lying.

Hours ago, Judge Altonaga reduced her oral ruling to writing and it is clear that
